Flexigroup donates $200,000 to bushfire relief

flexigroup has donated $500 for each Australian employee for a total of $200,000 to the Australian Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund to support Australians impacted by bushfires.

In addition, financial relief packages have been made available for flexigroup customers that have been directly impacted.

Rebecca James, Chief Executive Officer of flexigroup said:

“The devastating impact of the bushfires stretching right across our beautiful country has been heartbreaking. Stories of people losing loved ones, homes and livelihoods and the huge effect that these fires will have on wildlife for years and years to come is deeply saddening.

“At the same time, the bravery shown by our firefighters and volunteers has been nothing short of incredible and I’ve been encouraged by the touching stories of kindness which embody the spirit of community.

“We are also focused on how we can best support our customers now and over the longer-term. Customers impacted and requiring financial assistance should call when they are safe and able.”

flexigroup employees volunteering their time to help the bushfire effort in Australia will be supported through special paid leave.
